

My Beary wonderful ZSA members,

This week we discussed other job opportunities that aren't on the vet/zoo track (no hate to those job/career tracks). If you missed the meeting the job slide show will be posted below!

The animal of the week was the Moray eel which will be haunting my dreams until further notice. There are over 200 species of moray eels and they have pharyngeal jaws which they can protrude into their mouth to grab prey. The ZSA E-board gives the moray eel a 20/10 because we are NOT fighting this horrifying sea rope.

We don't have a lot of updates for you this week so if you aren't interested in t-shirt orders, internship opportunities, or getting off our email list feel free to scroll down to our memes of the week!

T-SHIRT ORDERS!!!! We placed our first order of t-shirts, long sleeve shirts, and crew necks containing the spartan "S" logo that Grace Leduc made for us. We only ordered enough shirts for those that filled out the google form. We will be doing a second order later on if people are still interested. If you ordered a macaroni shirt they have arrived and feel free to grab yours next week (after you pay of course).

Internship opportunities!!! Internship apps are coming to their last days (most end mid march). Check out the IBIO hands on database, the FW job board, the AZA website and the NSF website for some great internship opportunities.

If you have graduated or are no longer interested in receiving our emails please fill out this Form.

Alright folks that's all for updates here are the memes of the week:
